Eco-friendly italian papers

These new eco-friendly papers are made using process residues from organic products to replace up to 15% of virgin tree pulp.

By - products from citrus fruits, kiwi and cherry - which would normally be processed as fillers in animal food and fertilizers or simply dumped in landfill - are among the natural raw materials used.

Elements of each different material are visible on the surface of the papers giving a distinctive texture and appearance.

The papers are FSC certified, contain 30% post-consumer recycled waste and are produced with 100% green energy.

The production process is protected by European patent.
